UNO'S FATE IN BALANCE

State Department And White House Keep Silent, Study Future Course

WASHINGTON, March 14—

The angry tone of Josef Stalin's attack on Winston Churchill today kept in suspense American officials who are trying to keep the current "war of nerves" within bounds.

There was no official comment—and will not be—on Stalin's blunt accusation that Churchill and some of his friends in the United States were trying to whip up anti-Communist sentiment for a war against the Soviet Union.

Careful Study Given

But the White House and the State Department were studying Stalin's statement carefully. The incident which provoked it—Churchill's appeal for an Anglo-American alliance to stem Soviet expansionism—took place in the United States in the presence and under the quasi-sponsorship of President Truman.

On Capitol Hill, prominent senators cautioned against the hysteria resulting from the growing strain in American-Russian relations and denounced talk of the inevitability of war.

"All the talk in this country about an inevitable war with Russia is itself very threatening to the peace of the world," said Sen. Wayne L. Morse, R., Ore.

Name Calling Declined

Sen. Owen Brewster, R., Me., decried the name-calling between high British and Russian leaders at a time when the peace treaties for World War II have not even been drawn.

"The United States," he said, "can contribute most to the maintenance of peace by not choosing sides in this impending fracas at this time."

Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., high ranking member of the senate foreign relations committee, expressed fervent hope that current Big Three differences could be settled at the United Nations security council meeting in New York March 25.

"The decisions then reached may determine whether UNO is to become an effective instrument to preserve the future peace of the world or whether we shall lapse into another period of power politics among nations," he said.

Officials Concerned

In their private conversations, American foreign policy officials have never hidden their concern about repercussions from Churchill's now-famous speech at Fulton, Mo. They have been pointing out ever since it was made that Churchill called for the very thing the Soviets most fear—an Anglo-American military alliance which could be directed only toward the Soviet Union.

Stalin's attack on Churchill, in the form of an interview in Pravda, confirmed their suspicions. It also completely overshadowed the

Labor Peace Dawns As Strikes End

Goering Takes The Stand

WEARING a gray uniform with brass buttons but none of the decorations with which he once adorned himself, Hermann Goering, pudgy former Nazi deputy fuhrer, takes the witness stand in his own defense at Nuernberg war crimes trial in Germany.

Germany Sought Planes Capable Of Hitting U. S.

NUERNBERG, March 14—Hermann Goering revealed before the war crimes tribunal today that he had urged construction of long-range German bombers capable of attacking American factories long before the war began.

He said he wanted it "in event America should enter a war against Germany, and so I could reach the American armaments industry."

Goering was on the witness stand for the second day, fighting for his life. He was confident and composed in his pearly grey uniform, but had discarded the red scarf he wore yesterday.

Goering said that Russia was able to win the war only because it adhered to "the fuhrer principle."

Goering said the chief potential opponent he had to think about in the pre-war days was Russia, "but of course England, France and Italy had to be considered, since

I had to consider every possibility."

"I wanted an air force strong enough to protect the nation and to deal blows at Germany's enemies, no matter what the political situation was," he said.

He conceded that it was "perfectly correct that the speedy elimination of Poland and France depended on the air force, just as the American air force assured the Allied victory."

Goering insisted that Germany began rearming and drafting conscripts only after other nations had rejected Hitler's proposals for disarmament agreements and themselves had begun rearming.

"Russia," he said, "was carrying out unheard of rearmament."

Other countries also were building up their air forces at the time, Goering continued.

When the Spanish Civil War broke out, Goering said, he urged Hitler to support Gen. Francisco Franco by all means to prevent the spread of Communism and to give the Luftwaffe a chance to try its wings.

The Germans reoccupied the Rhineland to protect their security, he said, and the Siegfried Line was built only as "a bunker of final and definite defense."

Louisville Transit Employees Agree To Terminate Six-Day Walkout

By United Press
Two of the nation's longest and largest disputes, involving 275,000 workers, were settled today except for the formality of rank and file acceptance of the proposed contracts.

Agreements to end the two strikes—the CIO Auto Workers' against General Motors and the CIO Electrical Workers' walkout against the General Electric Co.—were reached on the basis of wage increases of 18 1/2 cents an hour.

GM "Most Significant"

Conclusion of the 114-day-old GM strike was described by Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach as the "most significant" of any reached in recent work stoppages. Schwellenbach, said it pointed to early settlement of remaining labor-management disputes idling 367,000 workers.

The number was the smallest since the current wave of reconversion industrial disputes broke out early this year. After the steel, meat and electrical walkouts in January, more than 1,800,000 workers were idle in strikes and shutdowns resulting from strikes.

The General Electric agreement was to be submitted for ratification by local unions at membership meetings Saturday, and workers were expected back on the job Monday. Maintenance crews were scheduled to return to GM's 92 strike-bound plants next week.

Transit Strike Ends

In other major labor developments: 1. Bus and trolley transportation in Louisville, Ky., was resumed after CIO Transport Workers unanimously approved an agreement to end a six-day walkout.

2. A federal conciliator was assigned to sit in on soft coal wage negotiations to be available for assistance, if necessary, to avert a mine strike April 2.

3. Public transportation was back to normal at Gary, Ind., un-

BENNETT SISTER TAKES SLEEPING PILLS; VERY ILL

NEW YORK, March 14—Barbara Bennett, eldest of the famous actress sisters, was reported in a critical condition at City Hospital today from an overdose of sleeping tablets.

Miss Bennett was admitted early today after an unidentified man summoned detectives to her apartment. Police investigation was not complete.

Miss Bennett is the sister of Constance and Joan Bennett and the widow of Addison Randall, cowboy actor who was killed last Summer when his head struck a tree as his horse galloped in front of a camera. She was divorced from Morton Downey, singer, in 1941.

Quiet, Sober Life Looms For Beer-Guzzling Duck

CHICAGO, March 14—Siwash, the beer-drinking duck, took to water today.

Her combat days behind her, The Marine Corps' fightingest fowl has been living high in a South Side American Legion hall. Her Leatherneck pals, who saw service with her on Tarawa, Saipan and Tinian, visited her daily.

And there was always someone around to buy her a beer.

But now Siwash is scheduled to retire to a duck farm at Troy Center, Ill.—No beer, no Marines. Just ducks.

Ex-Cpl. Francis Fagin, who won Siwash in a raffle at a New Zealand pub, took her out for a final fling.

he said. "I bought her all the beer she would drink and she worked up one of her better buns."

Fagin and Siwash were mustered out of the Marine Corps last October. Fagin originally had planned to keep the duck with him in the city.

"But I decided it wasn't fair to Siwash," he said. "She's got a right to have a normal duck life."

Fagin plans to visit Siwash frequently and maybe buy her a beer once in awhile for old times' sake.

"But aside from that she stays on the wagon," he said. "After all, a girl can't spend all her life hanging around bars."

Kennedy And Darden Lead The Field For Naval Post As Pauley Bows Out

WASHINGTON, March 14—Millionaire Joseph P. Kennedy and former Gov. Colgate W. Darden of Virginia were tops today in speculative discussion of persons likely to be nominated to be Undersecretary of Navy.

Nomination of Edwin W. Pauley for that post was withdrawn from the senate yesterday by President Truman after a political brawl which jarred the cabinet and left raw political wounds.

Kennedy is from Boston. He served the Roosevelt Administration as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and as Ambassador to Great Britain. The man named to be Undersecretary is expected shortly to succeed James Forrestal as Secretary of Navy. At least that is understood to have been the plan if Pauley had been confirmed.

Pauley's nomination was withdrawn at his request but under pressure after a six weeks political battle in which Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes resigned in a burst of charges against him and Mr. Truman. Ickes returned to the battle last night in a radio address before the Economic Club of New York. He said the Truman administration lacks moral standards "to the degree that violation of the law is condoned although it may threaten the foundations of the government."

He was referring partly to the fact that Attorney General Tom C. Clark had not taken action against a witness during the Pauley hearings. But the blast was aimed at Mr. Truman, as well.

When he stormed out of the cabinet on February 13, the Old Curmudgeon said he did not "care to stay in an administration where I am expected to commit perjury." He claimed Mr. Truman had asked him to go easy on Pauley when he testified before the Senate naval affairs committee on the nominee's fitness to be Navy undersecretary.

Committee announcement that Pauley had requested his name be withdrawn was accompanied by a statement that a majority of the members had "no doubt regarding his personal integrity and administrative competence."

Mr. Truman backed his man to the limit and said finally that he withdrew the nomination only with the greatest reluctance. The dispute had little to do with Pauley's integrity or ability. He became a political issue and had to be sacrificed.

But the political effects already are considerable. Ickes' opposition to Pauley forced him out of the cabinet because Mr. Truman, in effect, said he didn't believe Ickes.

The Old Curmudgeon now has become executive chairman of the independent citizens committee of arts, sciences and professions, an organization of New Dealers and Communists sympathizers. He is off on a political crusade and it is not likely to do Mr. Truman and his closest associates any good.

RED CROSS FAR BEHIND IN DRIVE

Only $2,390 Of $13,800 Quota Reported; Campaign Ends Friday Night

With the annual fund campaign of the Pickaway County chapter of the American Red Cross scheduled to end at midnight Friday the drive to attain the quota of $13,800 was far behind that figure Thursday.

Earl Lutz, treasurer of the organization, said that tabulation of donations up to Wednesday night totaled only $2,390.25. He and Joseph P. Noecker, chairman of the campaign within Circleville, explained, however, that less than one-third of the 85 solicitors in Circleville had filed their reports and that only a few of the 250 in the county outside the city had filed returns.

In the absence of Vaden Couch, general chairman of the campaign who was out of the city and was not expected to return until Saturday, Noecker and Lutz were unable to state whether the drive will be extended beyond Friday.

Homes? Sure —In Garages

Survey Discloses 5,600,000 Places To Live In United States

NEW YORK, March 14—You won't believe this if you've been out house hunting, but a survey completed today shows that there are still 5,600,000 places vacant in the United States where a couple could live.

Harrison Young, director of the Inselberg Foundation which conducted the survey, explained that his people didn't go looking for such obvious havens as vacant apartments or houses. They searched out possible extra rooms, many located in an attic or over a garage, which might be converted into living quarters.

Young estimated that there are 40,000,000 homes in the United States. If 21 per cent of these home owners, as with 10,000 who were questioned, could find space for tenants it would mean a total of 8,400,000 spaces.

"However, we believe that the total would run closer to 16 per cent," he said, "which would mean that approximately 5,600,000 spaces are now awaiting occupancy."

ADELPHI DRIVER FACES CHARGES

Vernon Arledge Is Accused In Hit-Skip Crash East Of City

As a result of a hit-skip crash at 10 p.m. Wednesday, on State Route 56 about two miles east of Circleville, Vernon Arledge, of near Adelphi, will be charged with reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident, it was stated Thursday by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff said that a car driven by Arledge sideswiped a machine operated by Mrs. Roy Strawser, Route 4, Circleville, and that Arledge failed to stop after the accident.

While the sheriff and deputies were searching for Arledge and a male companion news arrived that they had been arrested in Chillicothe. The other man, whose identity was not learned, was driving at that time. Chillicothe police charged Arledge with intoxication and his companion with driving when intoxicated.

Sheriff Radcliff said Arledge was to be returned to Circleville to face the twin charges. No one was hurt in the crash.

WAR MONGERING CHARGE HURLED AT LITTLE IRAN

Churchill And Other 'Foreign Reactionaries' Accused Of Abetting Move

PUPPET STATE IS FEARED

End Of Anglo-Russian Pact, Even Possible Conflict Read Into Talk

LONDON, March 14—Soviet Russia heightened her grave crisis with Britain today by following Premier Stalin's personal attack on Winston Churchill with charges that Iran and "foreign reactionaries" are seeking war against Russia.

The official government newspaper Izvestia charged that influential Iranian leaders are trying to take over Russian territory in the Caucasus and north of the Caspian Sea.

Aggressive Plans Charged

Entitled "The Aggressive Plans of Iranian Reactionaries," the article was the first in a series which apparently will be used to justify Russian military and political moves in Iran. Russian troop reinforcements have been reported on the move in northern Iran, inside the Soviet occupation zone.

Stalin's unprecedented attack on Churchill brought the conflict between the two great powers near the crisis point. The end of Big Three meetings and Soviet renunciation of the Anglo-Soviet friendship treaty were seen as possible results of Stalin's statement.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin reported to the British cabinet on the Iranian situation this morning.

Turks On Guard

An unconfirmed report in the tabloid London Daily Sketch quoted "radio messages picked up last night by The Sketch listening station" that heavy Turkish troops reinforcements were being dispatched to the Soviet and Iranian frontiers.

Diplomatic observers believed that the Russian moves were in preparation for establishment in Tehran of a government either completely puppet or at least strongly pro-Russian.

Premier Ahmed Ghavam of Iran disclosed yesterday that the Russians had made demands on him during his visit to Moscow, but he had refused to accept them.

Izvestia said that an Iranian clique with foreign help, campaigned after the first world war to acquire "vast Soviet territories inhabited by the Azerbaijanians, the Turkmen, the Armenians, Kurds and other nationalities, and very clearly hoped to turn the Caspian Sea into an inner Iranian sea."

Revival of Claims Seen

The newspaper said certain Iranian leaders were still trying to enforce these territorial claims, and were seeking to promote war between Soviet Russia and other great powers to make them effective.

Izvestia did not name what "foreign reactionaries" it believed were trying to help Iran's aims, but the attack followed the tone in recent denunciations of Churchill and Bevin.

Official British sources treated reports of Russian troop movements in Iran with utmost reserve, but apparently reliable press dispatches indicated that the Soviet military moves had been stepped up to a point where they might easily inflame the Middle East.

Garrison Reinforced

The Tehran correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph said the Russians now have more than a full division in Karaj, approximately 30 miles west of Tehran. The correspondent said that the Soviet garrison in the town a few days ago numbered "not more than 50 soldiers."

Russia maintained total diplomatic silence on her intentions in Iran. The Soviet government has made no reply whatsoever to British and American protests over her failure to evacuate Red Army troops from Iran by March 2, in accordance with her treaty agreements.

In Moscow, the Supreme Soviet was to reconvene today for a session which may be used as a sounding board for further state-

East Of City

As a result of a hit-skip crash at 10 p. m. Wednesday, on State Route 56 about two miles east of Circleville, Vernon Arledge, of near Adelphi, will be charged with reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident, it was stated Thursday by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff said that a car driven by Arledge sideswiped a machine operated by Mrs. Roy Strawser, Route 4, Circleville, and that Arledge failed to stop after the accident.

While the sheriff and deputies were searching for Arledge and a male companion news arrived that they had been arrested in Chillicothe. The other man, whose identity was not learned, was driving at that time. Chillicothe police charged Arledge with intoxication and his companion with driving when intoxicated.

Sheriff Radcliff said Arledge would be returned to Circleville to face the twin charges. No one was hurt in the crash.

Churchill And Other 'Foreign Reactionaries' Accused Of Abetting Move

PUPPET STATE IS FEARED

End Of Anglo-Russian Pact,
Even Possible Conflict
Read Into Talk

LONDON, March 14—Soviet

Russia heightened her grave crisis with Britain today by following Premier Stalin's personal attack on Winston Churchill with charges that Iran and "foreign reactionaries" are seeking war against Russia.

The official government newspaper Izvestia charged that influential Iranian leaders are trying to take over Russian territory in the Caucasus and north of the Caspian Sea.

Aggressive Plans Charged

Entitled "The Aggressive Plans of Iranian Reactionaries," the article was the first in a series which apparently will be used to justify Russian military and political moves in Iran. Russian troop reinforcements have been reported on the move in northern Iran, inside the Soviet occupation zone.

Stalin's unprecedented attack on Churchill brought the conflict between the two great powers near the crisis point. The end of Big Three meetings and Soviet renunciation of the Anglo-Soviet friendship treaty were seen as possible results of Stalin's statement.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin reported to the British cabinet on the Iranian situation this morning.

Turks On Guard

An unconfirmed report in the tabloid London Daily Sketch quoted "radio messages picked up last night by The Sketch listening station" that heavy Turkish troops reinforcements were being dispatched to the Soviet and Iranian frontiers.

Diplomatic observers believed that the Russian moves were in preparation for establishment in Tehran of a government either completely puppet or at least strongly pro-Russian.

Premier Ahmed Ghavam of Iran disclosed yesterday that the Russians had made demands on him during his visit to Moscow, but he had refused to accept them.

Izvestia said that an Iranian clique with foreign help, campaign after the first world war to acquire "vast Soviet territories inhabited by the Azerbaijanians, the Turkmen, the Armenians, Kurds and other nationalities, and very clearly hoped to turn the Caspian Sea into an inner Iranian sea."

Revival of Claims Seen

The newspaper said certain Iranian leaders were still trying to enforce these territorial claims, and were seeking to promote war between Soviet Russia and other great powers to make them effective.

Izvestia did not name what "foreign reactionaries" it believed were trying to help Iran's aims, but the attack followed the tone in recent denunciations of Churchill and Bevin.

Official British sources treated reports of Russian troop movements in Iran with utmost reserve, but apparently reliable press dispatches indicated that the Soviet military moves had been stepped up to a point where they might easily inflame the Middle East.

Garrison Reinforced

The Tehran correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph said the Russians now have more than a full division in Karaj, approximately 30 miles west of Tehran. The correspondent said that the Soviet garrison in the town a few days ago numbered "not more than 50 soldiers."

Russia maintained total diplomatic silence on her intentions in Iran. The Soviet government has made no reply whatsoever to British and American protests over her failure to evacuate Red Army troops from Iran by March 2, in accordance with her treaty agreements.

In Moscow, the Supreme Soviet was to reconvene today for a session which may be used as a sounding board for further statements.

ments on Soviet relations with the world.

Now that Stalin has taken the unparalleled step of personally denouncing his wartime Big Three colleague as a war monger against Russia, international diplomatic observers viewed the possibility of a new Big Three meeting as unlikely. Official British quarters said none was in prospect.

Soviet Interpretation

Stalin's interview in Pravda indicated that the Soviet government believes that Churchill, although out of office, is speaking for the British government. A similar conception appeared two days ago when the Izvestia denunciation of Churchill linked foreign secretary Ernest Bevin with him as an organizer of an anti-Soviet bloc.

The Soviet Premier apparently rejected outright Bevin's proposal re-iterated by Churchill, that the term of the Anglo-Soviet friendship pact should be extended from 20 to 50 years.

"It is clear that such a set-up as that of Mr. Churchill is incompatible with the existing treaty of alliance between England and the U. S. S. R.," Stalin said.

"Problems of the duration of a treaty have no sense if one of the parties violates the treaty and turns it into an empty scrap of paper," Stalin added.

Treaty Denunciation Feared

Observers read this as a suggestion that Russia might take a further step with an outright denunciation of the treaty on the grounds that Britain has made hostile moves toward Russia.

Stalin called Churchill a Hitler-like "firebrand of war," and promised that Russia would defeat any military expedition Churchill might succeed in organizing against Eastern Europe.

In similar vein, Izvestia two days ago charged Bevin with "encouraging hostile neighboring tribes on our southern borders."

Indicative of British reaction was a commentary on BBC last night which said that it looks as though Marshal Stalin is rejecting the 50-year pact offer "with total contempt." The BBC rarely if ever makes comments on the international situation which conflict with government views.

Treaty Made In 1942

The 20-year treaty between Britain and the Soviet Union was concluded on May 26, 1942. It called for mutual assistance in the war against Germany and provided for collaboration between the two states, in the peace settlement and during the reconstruction period, on the Atlantic Charter principles.

There still was no official confirmation of reports of large Russian reinforcements entering Iran, and of Red Army movements toward Turkey and Iraq.

Strength Minimized

Well-informed British sources said the Russian movements were believed less comprehensive than originally reported. The Daily Herald, Labor party organ, said there had been no reports to suggest that Soviet troops had been moved beyond the boundary of the old Russian occupation zone.

"For example," it said, "it was reported that a Russian force is some 20 miles from Tehran. The Russians have been there since the evacuation of the capital last autumn."

The troop movements, whatever their extent and purpose, do not alter the basic British and American objection to Russia's failure to remove her troops from Iran by March 2, as she promised by treaty to do.

U. S. OFFICIALS WARN AGAINST WAR HYSTERIA

Iranian crisis. Some experts here believe that may be part of the objective of the Russian attacks on Churchill's proposal.

There has been no relief, however, in the tension created by the State Department's revelation that Soviet troops retained in Iran after the withdrawal deadline have been reinforced with heavy combat military equipment.

Iran Seen As Test Case

On this issue Russia continues to give the United States the silent treatment while directing its propaganda guns against Britain. There has been no Russian reply to either of two American notes protesting Soviet policy and action in Iran.

Both the Soviet Union and the United States appear determined to make Iran a test case for their current diplomatic tug of war. The United States wants the case tried before the coming UNO security council meeting if Russia fails to remove her troops.

Officials who see the Iranian situation as a test case in UNO emphasize that they do not regard it as a test of war or peace. They are not convinced the die is cast that way yet.

Instead, they consider the Iranian issue a test of whether the Soviet Union is really prepared to follow the principle of the UNO charter—to resolve differences with other countries by consultation, negotiation and compromise—or is determined to go it alone irrespective of the wishes of other nations.

Cause For Alarm?

If Russia takes that course, it is believed, it will be because she is convinced that Britain and the United States are inextricably committed to a policy of "ganging up" on Russia.

Sen. Brewster said the United States itself might unintentionally be raising Russian suspicions in that direction through its agreements with Britain on oil, aviation, atomic energy control, Palestine and the proposed $3,750,000,000 loan.

All these, he said, "are nicely calculated—even though unwittingly on our part—to convey to the world and particularly to Russia that a working alliance is rapidly developing between the United States and Britain."

"Such a conclusion," he warned, "means that the United States may soon be underwriting a third world war."

Although advocating a policy of friendly but firm dealings with Russia, Brewster said the United States must persuade the world that we must have a "United Nations peace rather than Pax Britannica."

"This," he said, "is not a case of loving the United Kingdom less, but of loving UNO more."

Most American officials are convinced that both the Soviet government and the Soviet people are as anxious to avoid another war as are the American government and the American people. That, plus the tremendous devastation caused by the last war in Russia, is believed to be a major safety valve in such crises as exist in Iran.

CLOTHIERS FACE INVENTORY CUT

OPA Sets 30-Day Time Limit To Curb Hoarding Of Scarcer Items

WASHINGTON, March 14—Clothing manufacturers were given the choice today of getting their products to the consumer as soon as possible or taking a cut in profits.

Acting on reports that "sizeable" stocks of men's clothing and women's hosiery were being "hoarded in hope of higher prices," the civilian production administration limited manufacturers' inventories to 30 days or less.

In another step on the clothing front, the government announced it would raise future margins on cotton to $30 a bale to curb speculation and stabilize cotton prices. CPA said its inventory order would have the effect of forcing clothing manufacturers to keep their output of essential men's apparel and women's hosiery moving into distribution channels.

"Their only alternative to maintaining sales will be to reduce their rate of operations—an unprofitable move in view of heavy consumer demand for practically all types of clothing," the agency said. CPA said it was impossible to estimate exactly how much clothing its new order would force on the market because it had no accurate figures on how much was being hoarded by manufacturers.

The action was designed to supplement OPA regulations requiring manufacturers to devote a certain percentage of their output to low-priced clothing. Some manufacturers have built up large backlogs of higher-priced clothing under this regulation.

Manufacturers who have withheld clothing from the market in hopes of a price increase from OPA now may find themselves in "hot water" for violating CPA orders as well as OPA regulations.

"They will either have to dispose of their goods in accordance with OPA regulations or reduce or stop production until their inventory is in balance," CPA said.

BACK TO WORK! TRUCE SIGNED AT GM AND GE

Ford Contract Delayed

4. The UAW's national Ford council ended a four-day session without approving a new contract with the Ford Motor Co., and certain minor points of the agreement were ordered renegotiated before submission for rank-and-file approval.

The agreement to end the 59-day-old General Electric strike, affecting 100,000 workers in 16 states, was announced jointly last night by union and company representatives.

In addition to the 18½ cents pay boost, the proposed contract provided for retroactive pay to January 1 on the basis of the company's original offer of a 10 cents an hour increase to employees earning less than $1 an hour, and 10 per cent to those earning more than $1.

Westinghouse Unsettled

Simultaneously with the GE announcement, however, the union said that no progress had been reported toward settlement of the strike of 75,000 members against Westinghouse Electric Corp.

A Westinghouse agreement reportedly was being held up by company insistence on union assurance against strikes and elimination of inequalities in the incentive system. In addition, the company was said to be unwilling to match the GE wage increase on grounds it already was paying wages 11 per cent higher than the average for the industry.

The General Motors settlement, announced yesterday afternoon after an around-the-clock conference, provided for the 18½ cent increase, as well as "fringe" concessions which the union said boosted wages to the 19½-cent level recommended by President Truman's fact-finding board last January 10.

The agreement also provided for retroactive pay at the rate of 13½ cents an hour to employees on the job since last November 7. Thus, strikers are eligible for the retroactive pay increase up to November 21, when the walkout began.

May declined to give further details, but another committee member said May visited Secretary of State James F. Byrnes last week and asked him to release certain persons, but that no action was taken.

How would you CHART YOUR COURSE?

Pictured here are the records of four "life lines" of our business—four things which largely control the destiny of any business, whether it be a farm, a factory or a store. They are Wages, Materials Costs, Prices, and Profits. Suppose these were pictures of what is going on in your own affairs. How would you chart your future course from these facts?

What about wages?

Wages have risen steadily for five years. Before the strike which began on January 21 in ten of our plants and which has choked off nearly all farm machinery production, earnings of employees of these plants averaged $1.15½ an hour, not including any overtime. The Union demanded a 34 cents per hour increase and a Government board has now recommended a general increase of 18 cents an hour, which would make average earnings $1.33½ an hour. Weekly average would be $53.40.

What about materials?

No one seems to know how high materials costs will go. The Government has increased steel prices as much as $12.00 a ton, with an average increase for all grades of 8.2%. Steel is the most important material we buy, but prices on other materials are also increasing.

What about prices?

There has been no general increase in our prices since they were frozen by the Government in early 1942. Since then a few small increases have been allowed where particular machines were substantially changed in design.

What about profits?

Risk is part of the American profit and loss system, so we do not, of course, ask either our customers or the Government to guarantee that we can be certain of profits each year. The chart tells the story of our profits during the war. Although Harvester produced more goods than ever before, it had no desire to get rich out of war, so our rate of profit has steadily gone down. What our 1946 profit will be is extremely uncertain.

What is the next step?

As you can see, our present situation is that with frozen prices and declining profits, we are asked to pay higher materials costs and to make the biggest wage increase in the history of the Company. Can we do this?

Wages and materials consume all but a few cents of every dollar we take in. If our prices continue frozen, and cost of wages and

U. S. OFFICIALS WARN AGAINST WAR HYSTERIA

Brewster Laments Calling Of Names Between Powers, Urges Neutrality

Iranian crisis. Some experts here believe that may be part of the objective of the Russian attacks on Churchill's proposal.

There has been no relief, however, in the tension created by the State Department's revelation that Soviet troops retained in Iran after the withdrawal deadline have been reinforced with heavy combat military equipment.

Iran Seen As Test Case
On this issue Russia continues to give the United States the silent treatment while directing its propaganda guns against Britain. There has been no Russian reply to either of two American notes protesting Soviet policy and action in Iran.

Both the Soviet Union and the United States appear determined to make Iran a test case for their current diplomatic tug of war. The United States wants the case tried before the coming UNO security council meeting if Russia fails to remove her troops.

Officials who see the Iranian situation as a test case in UNO emphasize that they do not regard it as a test of war or peace. They are not convinced the die is cast that way yet.

Instead, they consider the Iranian issue a test of whether the Soviet Union is really prepared to follow the principle of the UNO charter—to resolve differences with other countries by consultation, negotiation and compromise—or is determined to go it alone irrespective of the wishes of other nations.

Cause For Alarm?
If Russia takes that course, it is believed, it will be because she is convinced that Britain and the United States are inextricably committed to a policy of "ganging up" on Russia.

Sen. Brewster said the United States itself might unintentionally be raising Russian suspicions in that direction through its agreements with Britain on oil, aviation, atomic energy control, Palestine and the proposed $3,750,000 loan.

All these, he said, "are nicely calculated—even though unwittingly on our part—to convey to the world and particularly to Russia that a working alliance is rapidly developing between the United States and Britain."

"Such a conclusion," he warned, "means that the United States may soon be underwriting a third world war."

Although advocating a policy of friendly but firm dealings with Russia, Brewster said the United States must persuade the world that we must have a "United Nations peace rather than Pax Britannica."

"This," he said, "is not a case of loving the United Kingdom less, but of loving UNO more."

Most American officials are convinced that both the Soviet government and the Soviet people are as anxious to avoid another war as are the American people. That, plus the tremendous devastation caused by the last war in Russia, is believed to be a major safety valve in such crises as exist in Iran.

Our town has a Housing Shortage

Yes, sir, there's a real housing shortage in our town, as I guess there is in yours, too.

Keefe Cole, for instance, is sharing his home with a brother-in-law from Connecticut. Six children and a dog in one family; four children and three cats in the other.

I asked Keefe how they got along together—especially the grown-ups. Didn't they get a little edgy from the noise and crowding?

Keefe looks at me with a twinkle. "Sure," he says. "And when that happens, Sara and I just pass around four sparkling glasses of good beer... and that reminds everybody that there are still a lot of friendly, gracious pleasures that can help us make the best of things."

From where I sit, it's great to be able to relax during this strain of postwar living with a beverage that's truly moderate and wholesome, truly friendly.

CLOTHIERS FACE INVENTORY CUT

OPA Sets 30-Day Time Limit To Curb Hoarding Of Scarcer Items

WASHINGTON, March 14—Clothing manufacturers were given the choice today of getting their products to the consumer as soon as possible or taking a cut in profits.

Acting on reports that "sizeable" stocks of men's clothing and women's hosiery were being "hoarded in hope of higher prices," the civilian production administration limited manufacturers' inventories to 30 days or less.

In another step on the clothing front, the government announced it would raise future margins on cotton to $30 a bale to curb speculation and stabilize cotton prices. CPA said its inventory order would have the effect of forcing clothing manufacturers to keep their output of essential men's apparel and women's hosiery moving into distribution channels.

"Their only alternative to maintaining sales will be to reduce their rate of operations—an unprofitable move in view of heavy consumer demand for practically all types of clothing," the agency said. CPA said it was impossible to estimate exactly how much clothing its new order would force on the market because it had no accurate figures on how much was being hoarded by manufacturers.

The action was designed to supplement OPA regulations requiring manufacturers to devote a certain percentage of their output to low-priced clothing. Some manufacturers have built up large backlogs of higher-priced clothing under this regulation.

Manufacturers who have withheld clothing from the market in hopes of a price increase from OPA now may find themselves in "hot water" for violating CPA orders as well as OPA regulations.

"They will either have to dispose of their goods in accordance with OPA regulations or reduce or stop production until their inventory is in balance," CPA said.

BACK TO WORK! TRUCE SIGNED AT GM AND GE

der a company-union agreement to submit disputed wage demands to arbitration.

Ford Contract Delayed
4. The UAW's national Ford council ended a four-day session without approving a new contract with the Ford Motor Co., and certain minor points of the agreement were ordered renegotiated before submission for rank-and-file approval.

The agreement to end the 50-day-old General Electric strike, affecting 100,000 workers in 16 states, was announced jointly last night by union and company representatives.

In addition to the 18 1/2 cents pay boost, the proposed contract provided for retroactive pay to January 1 on the basis of the company's original offer of a 10 cents an hour increase to employees earning less than $1 an hour, and 10 per cent to those earning more than $1.

Westinghouse Unsettled
Simultaneously with the GE announcement, however, the union said that no progress had been reported toward settlement of the strike of 75,000 members against Westinghouse Electric Corp.

A Westinghouse agreement reportedly was being held up by company insistence on union assurance against strikes and elimination of inequalities in the incentive system. In addition, the company was said to be unwilling to match the GE wage increase on grounds it already was paying wages 11 per cent higher than the average for the industry.

The General Motors settlement, announced yesterday afternoon after an around-the-clock conference, provided for the 18 1/2 cent increase, as well as "fringe" concessions which the union said boosted wages to the 1945 level recommended by President Truman's fact-finding board last January 10.

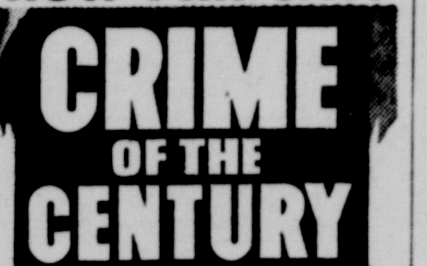

The agreement also provided for retroactive pay at the rate of 13 1/2 cents an hour to employees on the job since last November 7. Thus, strikers are eligible for the retroactive pay increase up to November 21, when the walkout began.

STASSEN LIKELY TO BACK THYE FOR U.S. SENATE

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 14—Harold E. Stassen, often-mentioned as a Republican presidential candidate, was expected to throw his political strength behind Gov. Edward J. Thye today for the senate seat currently held by Henrik Shipstead.

Twin cities observers conceded only an outside chance that Stassen himself would file for the senate post.

Thye, named to the Minnesota governorship after Stassen entered the Navy in 1943, said he would announce his decision on entering the senate race today. Stassen scheduled a radio address for 6:30 (CST) tonight.

CONGRESS OPENS PROBE OF REDS IN STATE DEPT.

WASHINGTON, March 14—Congress pressed an inquiry into alleged "pro-Russian" influences in the State Department today in the wake of charges that the Soviets were using Latin America as a "Springboard for violent attacks" against this country.

Chairman Andrew J. May, D. Ky., of the House Military Affairs Committee, disclosed that "representations" had been made to the State Department concerning the employment of persons with "pro-Russian" leanings.

May declined to give further details, but another committee member said May visited Secretary of State James F. Byrnes last week and asked him to release certain persons, but that no action was taken.

Depositing the carcass of a dead dog in a stream of water on a neighbor's farm proved expensive for Frank M. Williams, living on State Route 56 near Five Points. Caudy declared that water from the stream was used for livestock.

How would you CHART YOUR COURSE?

Pictured here are the records of four "life lines" of our business—four things which largely control the destiny of any business, whether it be a farm, a factory or a store. They are Wages, Materials Costs, Prices, and Profits. Suppose these were pictures of what is going on in your own affairs. How would you chart your future course from these facts?

Using U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics with 1941 prices equaling 100, prices of farm machinery in 1945 were only 104.2.

By the end of 1945, prices on all commodities other than farm products and food had gone up 12.2% since 1941. Chart does not show effect of 1946 increases.

Profit per dollar of sale has declined until in 1945 it was slightly less than four cents, as against 8 cents in 1941.

What about wages?

Wages have risen steadily for five years. Before the strike which began on January 21 in ten of our plants and which has choked off nearly all farm machinery production, earnings of employees of these plants averaged $1.15 1/2 an hour, not including any overtime. The Union demanded a 34 cents per hour increase and a Government board has now recommended a general increase of 18 cents an hour, which would make average earnings $1.33 1/2 an hour. Weekly average would be $53.40.

What about materials?

No one seems to know how high materials costs will go. The Government has increased steel prices as much as $12.00 a ton, with an average increase for all grades of 8.2%. Steel is the most important material we buy, but prices on other materials are also increasing.

What about prices?

There has been no general increase in prices since they were frozen by the Government in early 1942. Since then a few small increases have been allowed where particular machines were substantially changed in design.

What about profits?

Risk is part of the American profit and loss system, so we do not, of course, ask either our customers or the Government to guarantee that we can be certain of profits each year. The chart tells the story of our profits during the war. Although Harvester produced more goods than ever before, it had no desire to get rich out of war, so our rate of profit has steadily gone down. What our 1946 profit will be is extremely uncertain.

What is the next step?

As you can see, our present situation is that with frozen prices and declining profits, we are asked to pay higher materials costs and to make the biggest wage increase in the history of the Company. Can we do this?

Wages and materials consume all but a few cents of every dollar we take in. If our prices continue frozen, and cost of wages and materials continues to rise, obviously our Company will begin to operate at a loss at some point.

The exact point at which operating at a loss would start is a matter of judgment. Government agencies and union leaders may have opinions as to where that point is. But if they turn out to be wrong, they can shrug their shoulders and say: "Well, it wasn't my responsibility. I didn't make the decision."

The management of this Company cannot and will not say that. It dares not gamble. It has to be sure. Continuation of our service to millions of customers, the future jobs of thousands of employees, and the safety of the investments of 39,000 stockholders depend on our making a correct decision as is humanly possible.

What about future prices on farm machinery?

The judgment of Harvester's management now is that we cannot safely make the huge wage increase recommended by the Government until the Government authorizes adequate increases in the prices of farm machinery to cover the resulting increased costs.

That is not a judgment that makes us happy. The Company does not want to raise prices. We prefer to lower prices, when possible, and we know our customers prefer to have us do that. We have produced at 1942 prices, and hoped we could continue to do so. We have delayed seeking general price relief in the hope that it could be avoided. Now we are convinced that it cannot be avoided any longer. The price question must be settled. Until it is settled we do not see how we can settle the wage question. Until the wage question is settled we do not see how we can resume production and begin turning out the farm machines which we know our farmer customers need.

Because of the important stake which both farmers and city dwellers have in this controversy, we are bringing these matters to your attention. Through the cross currents of today's conditions,

COTTON RULING CREATES ANGER AT BOWLES, OPA

Maybank Tells Price Chief
He Can Serve Best By Resignation

WASHINGTON, March 14—Angry farm state congressmen declared war on economic stabilizer Chester Bowles and the OPA today because of a government order boosting future margins on cotton exchanges.

Chairman Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., of the senate agriculture committee, said the powerful farm bloc would strike back with an all-out fight to end OPA's life in June. He said the order was a threat to cotton growers as well as the exchanges.

Resignation Urged
Sen. Burnet R. Maybank, D., S. C., angrily told Bowles that the "best thing" he could do for the country was to resign.

Bowles precipitated the storm when he directed OPA to issue an order increasing margin requirements to $30 a bale in the country's three cotton exchanges at Chicago, New York and New Orleans. Effective date of the order will be announced later.

Bowles said he had the exchanges to take the action voluntarily but they refused. Speculative buying in cotton is sending the cost of clothing upward, he said, "and I have no choice but to employ and exhaust all the legal means at my command to stabilize prices."

The economic stabilizer said it was a case of boosting margin requirements or putting ceiling prices on raw cotton, a step he called "the last and least desirable alternative."

Bankhead Against It
Cotton margins heretofore have ranged from $10 a bale in Chicago to $20 in New York.

Sen. John H. Bankhead, D., Ala., said he was "against" it whether margins were hiked voluntarily or by government order.

"I am advised by a great many practical and successful farmers that they will be in the red because cotton costs more to produce than they can get for it," he declared.

"What they want to do," said Sen. John H. Overton, D., La., "is crucify the cotton farmer down south. They just want to rule and ruin rather than undertake to increase production."

Sen. Tom Stewart, D., Tenn., said he was "absolutely" opposed to the hike in margin requirements and that it would prove "very, very hurtful to the cotton farmers."

Extension Being Considered
Legislation to extend the price control act another year after June 30, the present expiration date, is now before the house banking committee. The angry farm legislators made it plain that they would be waiting for it when it comes before the senate.

"We can do plenty when OPA comes up," Maybank said but declined to amplify his statement.

Thomas, who had previously advised the heads of the cotton exchanges against one form of action.

PATENT OFFICE ASKS GENIUSES TO CUT IT OUT

Examiners Up To Their Eyes
In Applications For Screw-Drill Devices

WASHINGTON, March 14—The patent office issued an urgent appeal today for the geniuses of this nation to quit concocting cockeyed inventions.

The examiners are up to their bulging eyes in 98,715 applications for patents they haven't even opened. Every mail brings more, and if the inventors insist in producing stuff that nobody wants, the least they can do is quit pestering their Uncle Samuel for patents on same. Or so said W. Huston Kenyon, Jr., attorney for the government's patent survey committee, looking over the files and using such words as "trivial" and "questionable practical value."

Kenyon, you didn't mean the device - for - protecting - the - flesh - of - the - tips - and - adjoining - sides - of - the - fingers - during - painting - of - the - fingernails, did you? Or the hamburger patty former and wrapper? The combination pocket adding machine and lead pencil? The streamlined roller skates? The fluorescent window shade for railway cars?

Could you have meant, Mr. K., the sprinkler that crawls around the lawn under its own power, wetting everything in its path? The drip cup to fit around the handle of your tooth brush so you won't get your hand wet while polishing your choppers? The ornamental design of a tobacco smoking pipe for women? Surely couldn't have meant the bubble gum (pull the trigger and out comes bubbles)?

Soap Bubble Gun?
Did you ever get in an argument with an inventor, Kenyon? I believe you're heading for trouble. Peter S. Gilchrist of Charlotte, N. C., invented the bubble gun, and he claims a lot of people want to shoot soap bubbles. Can the government prove they don't?

Consider the pipe for ladies, as invented by William Arnold of Washington, D. C. If enough ladies take to briar pipes (and who is the patent office to say they won't?) He's going to make a fortune.

As for Henry Singer of Honolulu, he obviously has filled a long-felt want with his attachment for toothbrushes. Haven't you Kenyon, dribbled toothpaste on your paws and wished for a drip cup (patent number 2,394,640) to stop this? The self-illuminated window shade for steam cars came from Lindsay Schepmoes of New Haven, Conn. Obviously it makes 'em lighter at night.

Novel Sprinkler
You got a lawn in front of your house, Kenyon? Then the sprinkler that uses its own hose for a track and creeps along it, as developed by Gus Covey of North Platte, Neb., ought to be of real value. It even shuts itself off at the end of the line.

The patent office, itself, probably could use a few of Wayne M. Andrews' combination pocket adding machines and mechanical lead pencils which he developed in his New York laboratories and which should be helpful for counting patent applications.

ACS, according to the scientist who developed it, won't help you the least bit if you indulge in worry. That's it—we knew there was an impossible hitch to it, somewhere!

The first country in history to adopt Christianity as a state religion was Armenia, in 303 A. D.

TOJO'S COUNSEL MAPS DEFENSE OF EX-PREMIER

Will Seek To Show One Man
Could Not Be Responsible
For Pacific War

TOKYO, March 14—Dr. Ichiro Kiyose, chief defense counsel for ex-Premier Hideko Tojo, said today he would defend Japan's No. 1 war criminal suspect on grounds that no single group alone could have been responsible for an armed conflict of the magnitude of the Pacific war.

Kiyose likened Tojo's role to "igniting a room already filled with gas." Projected on a background of world events, Kiyose said, "individual judgment such as Tojo's undoubtedly exerted some effects, but he cannot be held entirely responsible."

Veteran Lawyer
Kiyose, a veteran lawyer who held a Diet seat for 25 years before he was branded an "undesirable" under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's political purge directive, said he expected the international tribunal to "bring out the truth" and not to seek retribution against Tojo.

He said that although Tojo is most vulnerable under the charge that he planned an aggressive war (since that goes back to the Manchurian incident), he considers the ex-premier's responsibility "comparatively light" in connection with wartime atrocities and so-called "crimes against humanity."

He said that atrocities against Allied soldiers and civilians were committed for the most part in theaters outside Japan. Therefore, Kiyose concluded, "it is up to the court to decide whether Gen. Yamashita alone was guilty or that Tojo also must share it."

"Forbidden Inhumanity"
Kiyose said that the pre-Pearl Harbor premier was the author of a booklet entitled "Moral Guide to the Japanese Soldier in Battle" which stressed Bushido principles and "forbidden inhuman acts." The booklet was circulated widely among Japanese troops.

Kiyose said he never was an "intimate friend" of Tojo. He said he decided to accept the case because he believed in the fairness of the international tribunal.

He does not think that Tojo's trial is likely to bring out testimony regarding the oft-discussed topic of Emperor Hirohito's war guilt.

Kiyose decided to defend Tojo after a personal visit from the ex-premier's family.

TOJO'S COUNSEL MAPS DEFENSE OF EX-PREMIER

Will Seek To Show One Man
Could Not Be Responsible
For Pacific War

TOKYO, March 14.—Dr. Ichiro Kiyose, chief defense counsel for ex-Premier Hideko Tojo, said today he would defend Japan's No. 1 war criminal suspect on grounds that no single group alone could have been responsible for an armed conflict of the magnitude of the Pacific war.

Kiyose likened Tojo's role to "igniting a room already filled with gas." Projected on a background of world events, Kiyose said, "individual judgment such as Tojo's undoubtedly exerted some effects, but he cannot be held entirely responsible."

Kiyose, a veteran lawyer who held a Diet seat for 25 years before he was branded an "undesirable" under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's political purge directive, said he expected the international tribunal to "bring out the truth" and not to seek retribution against Tojo.

He said that although Tojo is most vulnerable under the charge that he planned an aggressive war (since that goes back to the Manchurian incident), he considers the ex-premier's responsibility "comparatively light" in connection with wartime atrocities and so-called "crimes against humanity."

He said that atrocities against Allied soldiers and civilians were committed for the most part in theaters outside Japan. Therefore, Kiyose concluded, "it is up to the court to decide whether Gen. Yamashita alone was guilty or that Tojo also must share it."

"Forbidden Inhumanity"

Kiyose said that the pre-Pearl Harbor premier was the author of a booklet entitled "Moral Guide to the Japanese Soldier in Battle" which stressed Bushido principles and "forbidden inhuman acts." The booklet was circulated widely among Japanese troops.

Kiyose said he never was an "intimate friend" of Tojo. He said he decided to accept the case because he believed in the fairness of the international tribunal.

OUR ISLAND WORLD

PERHAPS our American fighting forces are demobilizing too quickly. It has happened before that our vast military power has been allowed to melt away in a manner that soon suggested weakness rather than the greatest strength ever assembled. Far-sighted experts are now warning our people that we must not make the same tragic mistake again, but must maintain for an indefinite time a reasonable amount of power to defend ourselves and keep the world in order.

Walter Lippmann has pointed out the reassuring fact that, located as we are, so to speak, in the middle of the world, we are admirably situated for this purpose as long as we do not allow ourselves to deteriorate. With our present position, and with an army of adequate strength and power of expansion when necessary, we need have no fear of what may happen abroad, and can well afford to advertise this basic fact, as a deterrent against the chance of any foreign power running amuck against us.

WELL FED

APPARENTLY nobody in this country went hungry in the recent war, unless by choice or accident. Is there any other country in the world where this could be true? We are so fortunate that we can, and did, send a great deal of food abroad to many countries. And we not only had bread, but white bread, such as most of our foreign friends have not seen or tasted for years.

There will be more dark bread seen here from now on, and some of our dainty fellow-citizens may not like it so well, but they can probably pull through. They may remember with inward satisfaction that they have helped to keep many good people from starving.

DISTANT VENUS

MANY people lately seem to think that we shall soon be on speaking terms with the planets—especially the beautiful planet Venus, whose name, fame and proximity all tend to make it more attractive than the others for our earth-bound citizens.

But really, it is quite a distance from the earth to Venus, a matter of some 26,000,000 miles—so far that even a radar signal traveling with the speed of light would take at least five minutes to get there—and then would doubtless land with such a thud that a recording angel couldn't count the pieces.

Hitler must be turning in his grave. In Germany, according to the London Daily Express, Germans are now trying to prove that they have Jewish blood. If they can, they become eligible for the extra food granted to victims of Nazi persecution. This must be the supreme irony of history.

Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, where men think they can boss the world.

A TOAST TO TOAST—SAVING CAMPAIGN

BY JACK GAYER

NEW YORK, March 14—Broadway diners-out—and from the crowds in Lindy's, Sardi's and Shor's you'd think nobody in show business had a home—look favorably upon some of the recommendations for wheat and fats savings made to public eating places by President Truman's famine emergency committee.

For example, that item about discontinuance of toast as a garniture with meat, poultry and other entrees. That's the toast that makes your filet mignon appear at first glance to be twice as thick as it really is and that helps misrepresent the amount of scrambled eggs.

Now, there was a problem that had bothered the best minds for years. In the first place, you couldn't eat it. Secondly, you just couldn't ignore it. As a substitute for shoe leather, the stuff was good only on dry days. And all the time the simple solution offered by the committee was there for the grasping—just dispense with it.

The only person expressing any regret at the passing of the custom was movie star Pat O'Brien, who only recently hit upon the scheme of saving his toast garnitures to burn in his fireplace, the price of firewood being what it is.

The recommended use of single crust or open pies as against the two-faced variety will be a blessing in disguise for those who are getting a little flabby of muscle and brittle of bone. Forks also will last longer against the one-crust pies. Pie-makers will be cussed only half as much.

Elimination of the custom of trimming toast and sandwich crusts will enable many persons to enjoy the privilege of creating their own crust pies, thus compensating for a hardship of childhood when they were forced to eat the rind on the grounds that it was good for them. The town's pigeons also may look forward to bigger handouts, with the crusts thus being made available to diners.

The recommended elimination of three-layer cakes is favored by those who know they ought to be dieting. They will be able to order two or ne-layer cakes with clear consciences. Of course, they'll have to hold firm against the temptation of second helpings.

The serving of corn and buckwheat cakes instead of wheatcakes may lead to some unhappiness. Wheatcakes around here have never been on a very high plane, so the prospect of restaurants delving into the slightly delicate art of trying to make good corn and buckwheat flapjacks isn't exactly pleasant.

All of these benefits, of course, are likely to be more than offset come mid-summer when, from present prospects, a lot of whistles aren't going to get the proper wetting of beer.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 14—Now let me explain the latest Truman-Bowles wage price policy issued Monday:

Bars to wage increases are to be removed and patterns established with ifs, ands, and buts. One of the ifs provides an 18 1/2 cents an hour increase if the local pattern permits, but not necessarily, in case this provision does not apply, the cost-of-living pattern will become a but, although not automatically. The cost-of-living pattern is changed from—and here I quote the official explanation—"an increase in straight-time hourly earnings in the appropriate unit to the extent" that increases had fallen short of a 33 percent increase since January 1, 1941. That is the old, old pattern since February 14. It is to be changed to—I quote again—"increases in basic wages if hourly wages of the appropriate unit have not risen 33 percent since January 1, 1941." This is the different wage policy as the official handouts present it. Different, isn't it?

The price policy is explained with equal simplicity. The new policy—I quote again—"will not mean a new higher level of prices." There are no ifs, ands, or buts about this. Upon this Mr. Bowles is firm. His OPA, however, simultaneously provided a but, if not a butt—or butte. At the very moment of the Bowles announcement, it made public a general increase in the prices of men's and boy's clothing in order to induce manufacturers to release their stores to the public. Twenty-four hours earlier OPA authorized what it called "substantial rises in cotton textile prices" to spur production of shirts and dresses. Just before that, a general rise of 10 cents a barrel in the price of oil had been authorized by the same official agency under Mr. Bowles. Steel had been sent up by the government $2 to $12 a ton. Building material increases had been directed by OPA on lumber specifically and an announcement was issued bragging about the tremendous increases, which, the government said, no longer justified the week production of such materials. Too numerous for this terse column were other additional price butts, butts—or buttes.

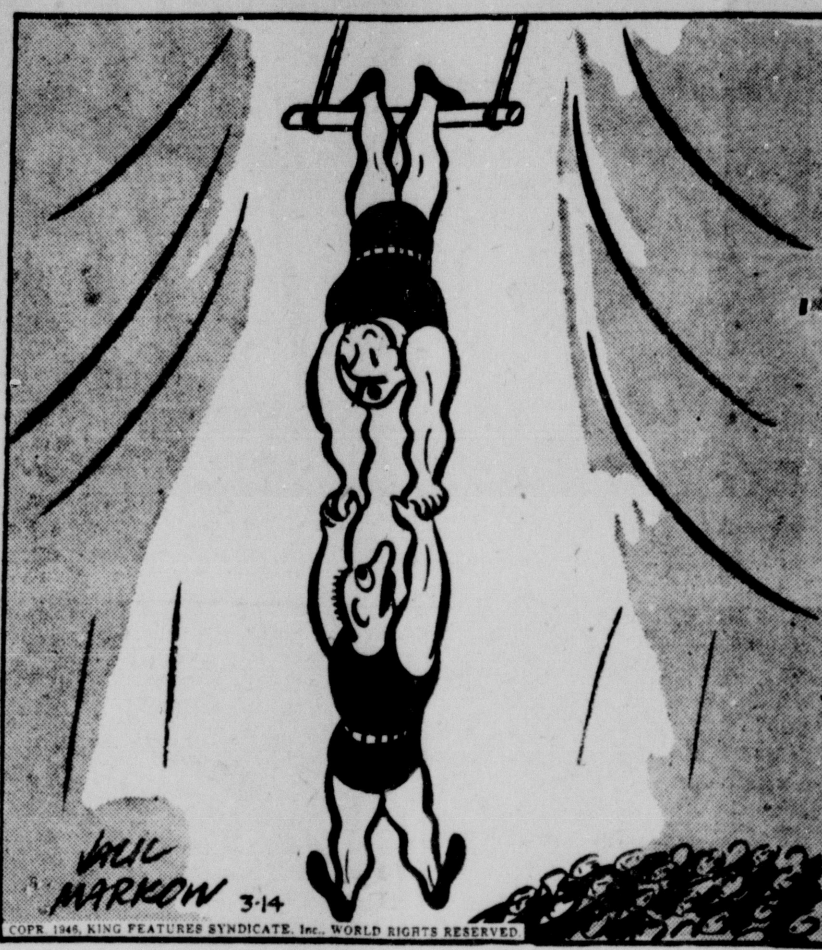

Now do you understand? If not I will put it in a nutshell, where it seems to be anyhow. The recent wage increase formula is to be liberalized tremendously, but not too much, greatly, a little, maybe and maybe not, but the price formula is not to be liberalized one inch in the struggle to hold the bulge against inflation; that is, not for anything, and by this I mean not anything so far except steel, building materials, fuel, clothing, shirts, dresses, sugar, butter and other foods and other materials. This is the way they tell it—officially. Yet they wonder why there is confusion.

Seriously I do not think they are as confused as they say. I think I can detect a ray of light behind the flimsy curtain of words, namely this:

The government tried to increase wages without increasing prices and found this could not be done. Goods were backed up in some lines because these could not be sold at a profit. These were being kept in storage. Production was discouraged in other lines because it could not be attempted profitably. A readjustment was necessary in order to get distribution as well as production. This was further advisable as a discouragement to black markets. Indeed some black markets had become bigger than the white. (For further explanation look back upon my columns of the past two weeks.) From a political standpoint

Treatment of Liver Damage

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
IT IS only in recent times that many of the facts concerning inflammation of the liver or hepatitis have been collected. Now it is known that certain infections, as well as various drugs, may cause liver damage.

In a group of 63 patients studied by Dr. Nathan W. Chaikin and Dr. Simeon O. Chlenoff of New York City, the most common causes of the liver inflammation were infections, drugs, such as arsenic, and various general diseases, such as pneumonia. More than one-half of the patients developed the condition because of infection and the majority of them were over twenty years of age.

Apparently a Virus
While the exact cause of liver inflammation is not known, it would appear that it is due to a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter. The patients who developed the condition as a result of drugs had received such preparations as sulfathiazole and sulfadiazine. It is thought that these drugs may have direct damaging action in the liver cells. Because of this fact it may be inadvisable to use sulfonamide drugs for infections which develop during the course of chronic liver disease.

In a number of the cases the acute inflammation of the liver or hepatitis followed the use of arsenic-containing drugs. Other conditions which produced hepatitis were pneumonia and syphilis.

Symptoms Same
It appears that no matter what may cause hepatitis, the symptoms are about the same. There may be pains in the abdomen, loss of appetite, vomiting and diarrhea. In a few instances the condition may begin with symptoms like those of a cold. Fever is present in some instances. About three to five days following the onset of the condition, jaundice or a greenish-yellow discoloration of the skin as well as the mucous membranes, especially the white portion of the eyes, may occur.

This may last from seven to twenty-six days. The disorder is diagnosed on the basis of the symptoms and various laboratory tests are made to determine how the liver is functioning. In children it would appear that this condition as a rule, runs a rather mild course. In adults it may be more serious.

There is no specific treatment for the infection which produces hepatitis, insofar as is known at present. Complete rest is bed, the use of the proper diet and the giving of plenty of fluids are all helpful measures. The diet should contain an abundance of sugars, and proteins such as meat and milk.

A great deal further study is needed to determine the exact way in which the infectious form of liver inflammation spreads and to develop preventive measures.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. K.: Is it possible to permanently raise a prolapsed transverse colon by electrical or manual manipulation, or both, or by operation?

Answer: It is not likely that manipulation would restore a colon to its normal position. An operation might be performed for this condition. However, a gain in weight and strengthening of the abdominal muscles by exercise may be all that is necessary.

G. M.: How can one get from foods the proper iodine requirements necessary for good health?
Answer: Sea foods, such as oysters, salmon, and sardines, contain the most iodine. It is also found in butter and milk. Most vegetables, especially those grown in land near the sea, contain iodine in small quantity. The use of iodine salt will also aid in supplying a sufficient quantity of iodine.

D. A. W.: Is it harmful to use suppositories in stubborn cases of constipation?

Answer: The frequent use of suppositories may be habit forming. However, properly employed, they may be helpful in overcoming constipation until the proper bowel habits are formed with diet, exercise and the drinking of plenty of fluids.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

THE DAYS dragged by. Ede got up on the third day and went about her business, which consisted mostly of sitting with an unread book in her hands. Jenny could not arouse her interest, nor Gram, nor even Steve. Mary Hathaway did, though, coming to the house, saying, "Nonsense, of course you'll see me. I've come to take you for a drive." She was brisk, pretty, and entirely practical. Sympathetic without running over at the mouth, as Gram expressed it. She bore Ede off, and brought her back again after a drive and a high tea at the Hathaway house. Ede returned looking rested, or at least a little less strained, her color was better and Gram said grudgingly, "Maybe I've misjudged that young lady. She seems to have sense."

She had more than sense, she had influence. Justice and his father had very higher-up connections. The telephone and telegraph wires were hot, and there were ways and means of finding out. So the Hathaways found out, for Ede, Dick Ainslee had been wounded in the shoulder and the thigh. The wounds were not serious, the new drugs precluded infection. Eventually he would be brought to a hospital, probably on the West Coast.

Ede was very grateful. She told Jenny and Gram, over and over. She said, the evening Mary telephoned her the information, "I wonder—" she looked at them appealingly—"would you mind very much if I went out to Dick's mother?"

Gram drew a sharp little breath and Ede took her cool old hand. She said, "I know. But she's alone, Gram. . . . out there, waiting. She hasn't anyone. She wrote me," said Ede, flushing a little because she had not shared the letter with Gram and Jenny, "and asked me if I would consider it. She has that little apartment in San Francisco, and a room for me. We could wait there together and then if Dick is sent to the West Coast. . . . Don't you see?" she asked.

Gram nodded. She said, "I see." She rose stiffly from the straight chair in the living room. She added, "If you want to go, you should. And it sounds sensible to me, Ede. Of course you take a chance on his not being sent there, but meantime it would comfort Mrs. Ainslee to have you to help her over the waiting."

She smiled, her blue eyes kind. She said, "You do as you think best, dear."

When she had left the room, Ede looked at Jenny. "She hates having me go," she said miserably. "Naturally," said Jenny, "we'll both hate it, but it does make sense."

Ede said restlessly, "It makes more than that. I—I can't take it here, Jenny. I keep remembering. . . . I—"

"Don't talk about it," Jenny said quickly. "I have to, I won't again. Just this once. You see, at first, well, after last spring I was so resentful—of everyone and everything. You, mostly. I believed a lot of things. But lately I've been thinking. You're such a—a goof, Jen, getting yourself into silly situations because you thought you could help me. It's clear enough now. Then I got so I didn't mind seeing"—it was hard for her to say his name—"Justice, after a while. It was as if none of that time had ever been. But after I learned about Dick, it was hard again. I've even hated being grateful to him. I've been glad he's been away this past week and I needn't see him when I had to go up to the Hathaways. I could just tell Mary to thank him for me. So," she said, "I go away. . . . You understand, don't you?"

"I understand," Jenny leaned forward from her corner of the couch. "Ede, for heaven's sake don't tell Dick anything," she advised. Ede grew very white. She said, "I've been thinking about it, every day. Whether I should."

Jenny said, "He's had a bad time. He has to get well without anything to trouble him. He can't, if you tell him. You'll want to, perhaps," Jenny said painfully. "It might make you feel better. But it won't help him. Can't you start again from here?" she asked. "If anyone has to suffer, it had better be you," she said, low, "and not Dick."

"Honestly. . . ." began Ede. "You didn't think about that before," said Jenny, "did you? It isn't going to help now. Dick has to come back to the sort of life he's been dreaming about and the wife he remembers. The wife he believed in. . . ."

Ede said after a while, "I don't know what will happen. Maybe he'll go back to war. . . . as an instructor here or something. I could follow him. Maybe he'll get a medical discharge and go back to civilian life. He'll want to stay out in California, that's his home."

"All the better," said Jenny cheerfully. Ede said, "All right, I won't tell him. But is it all right, Jenny. Is it?"

Jenny said, "I don't know, Ede. I can't seem to think about it that way, whether it's right or wrong, ethically. Only what's right for Dick."

The short time before Ede left for the Coast was crowded. The investigation into the circumstances of the Barnacle fire was concluded. The holding company, which owned and leased the various buildings was heavily fined and, despite all the lawyers could do, the manager of the Barnacle was recommended for trial for criminal negligence. The wrecking crew descended upon the Barnacle and tore down what was left of it. And when the courts opened again, presently, the damage suits would start.

Justice Hathaway came home from New York and Washington. Production was not slackening with Allied victories in the various theaters of war. He brought with him future plans and pressing present business. Jenny, working late one evening, was not aware of the time until he came in and stood at her desk and looked down at her. "Call it a day," he suggested.

Jenny looked at her clock, startled. She straightened up and sighed. "Golly, I didn't know the time. I've a kink in my back at that, and feel a little wilted," she admitted.

He said, "I have to stay, but you cut along home." He gave her a little pat on the shoulder. He added uneasily, "I hear Ede's going out to the coast. Mary told me at breakfast."

"That's so," said Jenny. She hadn't mentioned it to him. It wasn't his business.

When she reached home Gram had a cold supper waiting. It was still very warm, as it often is around Labor Day. Ede had had supper and gone out to say goodbye to some of her friends in town. Jenny, with a tray on the back porch, grinned at Gram. She said, "I'm sorry I didn't phone, Gram. I clean forgot."

"That's all right," said Gram, smoothing her apron. She added, "Ede seems a little more cheerful, doesn't she? I suppose it's—well, doing something. Packing, planning. Getting ready to move. Anybody's better than inaction and waiting."

Jenny said, "I guess so, Gram. Don't look so sad. You've got me." Gram said, "I wasn't being sad for myself. I'm glad Ede's going." She added after a moment, "She's too used to us, Jenny. And there's nothing for her here. Mrs. Ainslee, now, that will be different. She's Dick's mother. She can talk to Ede about Dick, what he was like when he was a baby and a little boy and a young man growing up. And Ede will have to think of her. She'll even feel a little responsible for her. Mrs. Ainslee isn't young, she hasn't been very well, and she's alone except for a servant in that apartment. Ede can take over, run the house, do things for her. She can't here," said Gram stoutly. "I run things. You're busy, and self-reliant. She needs to be taken out of herself. She's selfish," said Gram, "she always has been. Maybe we've spoiled her."

Jenny said, "We'll have to do a bit of budgeting, darling." There was that factor to be considered. Ede had forgotten it, apparently. Jenny didn't. "The two of us, I'll miss her ration book, though," she said unexpectedly.

Even if Ede remembered and offered to send money home from the money Dick sent her, Gram wouldn't take it, thought Jenny. And she had occasion to think about it again later.

She was upstairs, wearing a very scant prewar robe of faded silk when Justice Hathaway's car stopped at the door and Gram went out to see who was calling. Jenny heard them talking in the hall and Gram called, "Jenny, Mr. Hathaway wants to speak to you."

Jenny said, startled, "Half a minute," flew into the nearest garments, scrambled into a dress and dashed downstairs, her hair standing around her head in thick, just brushed curls. Justice looked up at her, smiling. He said, "I'm sorry, Jenny, I've got to go back to the office. I just had a call from Washington and there's something I need in the files. . . . Also I've got to get a letter out—I can't discuss the matter over the phone or even write. I'll drive to Northam and meet the express with it."

Jenny asked, "You want me to go with you?"

He said, "I wish I could say no. But there's no one else I can trust with this."

She said, "Okay," briefly. Gram said comfortably, "Run along, Jenny."

But her eyes, watching them go down the steps together, were troubled.

OUR ISLAND WORLD

PERHAPS our American fighting forces are demobilizing too quickly. It has happened before that our vast military power has been allowed to melt away in a manner that soon suggested weakness rather than the greatest strength ever assembled. Far-sighted experts are now warning our people that we must not make the same tragic mistake again, but must maintain for an indefinite time a reasonable amount of power to defend ourselves and keep the world in order.

Walter Lippmann has pointed out the reassuring fact that, located as we are, so to speak, in the middle of the world, we are admirably situated for this purpose as long as we do not allow ourselves to deteriorate. With our present position, and with an army of adequate strength and power of expansion when necessary, we need have no fear of what may happen abroad, and can well afford to advertise this basic fact, as a deterrent against the chance of any foreign power running amuck against us.

WELL FED

APPARENTLY nobody in this country went hungry in the recent war, unless by choice or accident. Is there any other country in the world where this could be true? We are so fortunate that we can, and did, send a great deal of food abroad to many countries. And we not only had bread, but white bread, such as most of our foreign friends have not seen or tasted for years.

There will be more dark bread seen here from now on, and some of our dainty fellow-citizens may not like it so well, but they can probably pull through. They may remember with inward satisfaction that they have helped to keep many good people from starving.

DISTANT VENUS

MANY people lately seem to think that we shall soon be on speaking terms with the planets—especially the beautiful planet Venus, whose name, fame and proximity all tend to make it more attractive than the others for our earth-bound citizens.

But really, it is quite a distance from the earth to Venus, a matter of some 26,000,000 miles—so far that even a radar signal traveling with the speed of light would take at least five minutes to get there—and then would doubtless land with such a thud that a recording angel couldn't count the pieces.

Hitler must be turning in his grave. In Germany, according to the London Daily Express, Germans are now trying to prove that they have Jewish blood. If they can, they become eligible for the extra food granted to victims of Nazi persecution. This must be the supreme irony of history.

Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, where men think they can boss the world.

A TOAST TO TOAST—SAVING CAMPAIGN

BY JACK GAVER
NEW YORK, March 14—Broadway diners-out—and from the crowds in Lindy's, Sardi's and Shor's you'd think nobody in show business had a home—look favorably upon some of the recommendations for wheat and fats savings made to public eating places by President Truman's famine emergency committee.
For example, that item about discontinuance of toast as a garniture with meat, poultry and other entrees. That's the toast that makes your flit mignon appear at first glance to be twice as thick as it really is and that helps misrepresent the amount of scrambled eggs.
Now, there was a problem that had bothered the best minds for years. In the first place, you couldn't eat it. Secondly, you just couldn't ignore it. As a substitute for shoe leather, the stuff was good only on dry days. And all the time the simple solution offered by the committee was there for the grasping—just dispense with it.
The only person expressing any regret at the passing of the custom was movie star Pat O'Brien, who only recently hit upon the scheme of saving his toast garnitures to burn in his fireplace, the price of firewood being what it is.
The recommended use of single crust or open pie as against the two-faced variety will be a blessing in disguise for those who are getting a little flabby of muscle and brittle of bone. Forks also will last longer against the one-crust pies. Pie-makers will be cussed only half as much.
Elimination of the custom of trimming toast and sandwich crusts will enable many persons to enjoy the privilege of creating their own crust pies, thus compensating for a hardship of childhood when they were forced to eat the rind on the grounds that it was good for them. The

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 14—Now let me explain the latest Truman-Bowles wage price policy issued Monday:

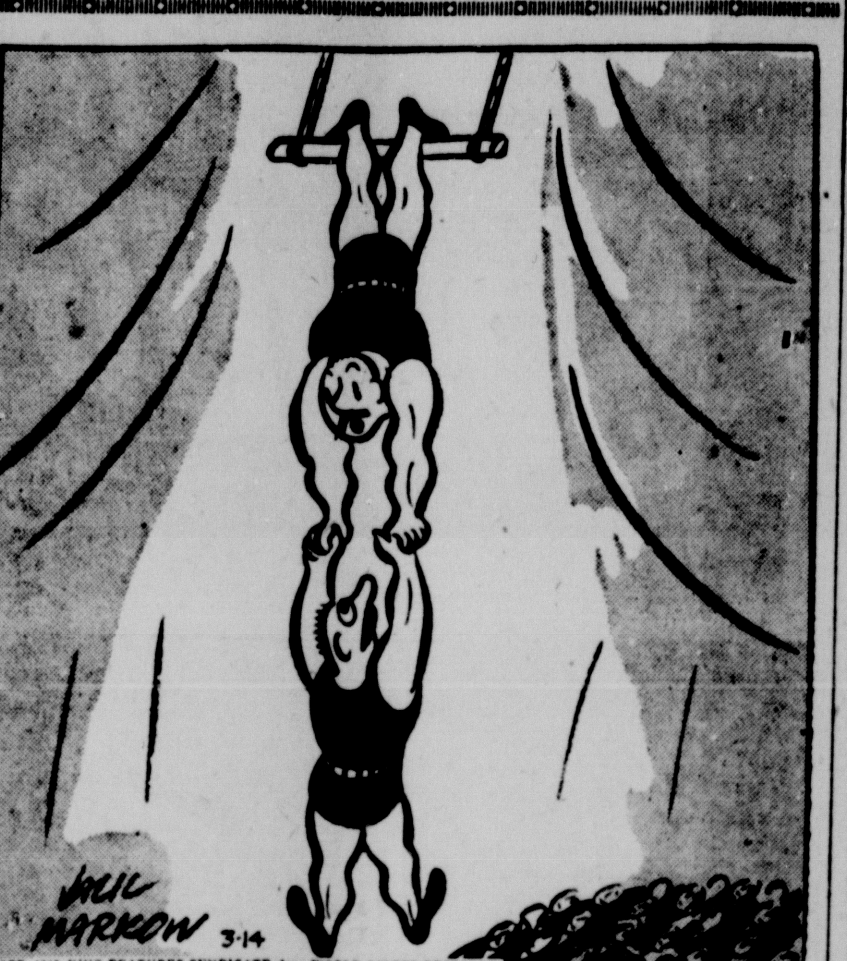

Bars to wage increases are to be removed and patterns established with ifs, ands, and butts. One of the ifs provides an 18 1/2 cents an hour increase if the local pattern permits, but not necessarily, in case this provision does not apply, the cost-of-living pattern will become a but, although not automatically. The cost-of-living pattern is changed from—and here I quote the official explanation—"an increase in straight-time hourly earnings in the appropriate unit to the extent" that increases had fallen short of a 33 percent increase since January 1, 1941. That is the old, old pattern since February 14. It is to be changed to—I quote again—"increases in basic wages if hourly wages of the appropriate unit have not risen 33 percent since January 1, 1941." This is the different wage policy as the official handouts present it. Different, isn't it?

The price policy is explained with equal simplicity. The new policy—I quote again—"will not mean a new higher level of prices." There are no ifs, ands, or butts about this. Upon this Mr. Bowles is firm. His OPA, however, simultaneously provided a but, if not a butt—or butte. At the very moment of the Bowles announcement, it made public a general increase in the prices of men's and boy's clothing in order to induce manufacturers to release their stores to the public. Twenty-four hours earlier OPA authorized what it called "substantial rises in cotton textile prices" to spur production of shirts and dresses. Just before that, a general rise of 10 cents a barrel in the price of oil had been authorized by the same official agency under Mr. Bowles. Steel had been sent up by the government $2 to $12 a ton. Building material increases had been directed by OPA on lumber specifically and an announcement was issued bragging about the tremendous increases, which, the government said, no longer justified the week production of such materials. Too numerous for this terse column were other additional price butts, butts—or buttes.

Now do you understand? If not I will put it in a nutshell, where it seems to be anyhow. The recent wage increase formula is to be liberalized tremendously, but not too much, greatly, a little, maybe and maybe not, but the price formula is not to be liberalized one inch in the struggle to hold the bulge against inflation; that is, not for anything, and by this I mean not anything so far except steel, building materials, fuel, clothing, shirts, dresses, sugar, butter and other foods and other materials. This is the way they tell it—officially. Yet they wonder why there is confusion.
Seriously I do not think they are as confused as they say. I think I can detect a ray of light behind the flimsy curtain of words, namely this:

The government tried to increase wages without increasing prices and found this could not be done. Goods were backed up in some lines because these could not be sold at a profit. These were being kept in storage. Production was discouraged in other lines because it could not be attempted profitably. A readjustment was necessary in order to get distribution as well as production. This was further advisable as a discouragement to black markets. Indeed some black markets had become bigger than the white. (For further explanation look back upon my columns of the past two weeks.) From a political standpoint (Continued on Page Ten)

STILL THE Greatest Mother OF THEM ALL!

TWENTY-NINE years ago, in 1917, your Red Cross was given the proud title, "The Greatest Mother In The World." Today after the greatest struggle in history, that title has been retained. The list of services your Red Cross has given our Servicemen — your Serviceman — is almost endless.

Blood plasma made the difference between life and death to many thousands of our men.

Food parcels packed by the Red Cross meant survival to many of our men in prisoner of war camps. Medical kits and capture parcels were provided wherever possible. Red Cross workers distributed release kits to thousands of prisoners as soon after their liberation as possible. Red Cross Clubs have sprung up by the hundreds all over the world... wherever the Armed Forces went... supplying a warm touch of home for lonely, homesick lads.

Red Cross hospital workers talk to the men—laugh and play games with them—provide amusement and recreation facilities to shorten long, dreary days. The cheerful smile of an American girl helps banish loneliness and boredom... helps a man keep his chin up when things look pretty dark.

And on the home front, wherever fire, flood or other disaster strikes, the Red Cross is ready with relief for the suffering.

Yes, your Red Cross is literally mother to many millions... friend of the friendless... comrade in time of need. And its work must go on. Hundreds of thousands of our men are still overseas. They need the Red Cross, and they need it now.

It is your Red Cross. The gift you give is its only income. Without you, the Red Cross can not carry on. Don't put off giving to the Red Cross. Give today!

GOLFERS LEAVE FIELD TO HOGAN IN $7,500 OPEN

JACKSONVILLE Fla., March 14—(UP)—Pleading golf fatigue, three of the nation's top players dropped out of the $7,500 Jacksonville open today, leaving the field wide open to Ben Hogan, the game's leading money winner this season.

A field of about 100 golfers was scheduled to tee off in the opening round today minus Byron Nelson, Harold (Jug) McSnaden and Craig Wood, who all decided to sit this one out.

They explained to P. G. A. tournament manager Fred Corcoran that the strain of the winter tournament circuit has proved too much and indicated they may remain on the "bench" until the Master's Tournament in Augusta, Ga., April 4.

Feed Shortage Clouds Egg, Poultry Outlook

Ohio Is Reported In Better Condition Than Most Eastern States

Feed shortage is the big obstacle faced by poultry raisers in the Circleville area. This is recognized in a bulletin received by Larry Best, Pickaway County federal farm agent and director of farm extension work, from the agricultural extension department of Ohio State University.

"The outlook in the egg and poultry market is clouded by feed shortages," the OSU bulletin says, "although Ohio is in better condition than most eastern states."

More Feed Sought
"Already shortages in the east are bringing concerted efforts by poultry and farm organizations there on Congress, the OPA, and everyone else to get more feed. They are asking an increased ceiling on corn so they can coax some of it away from the midwest hogs. Export demands for wheat have seriously reduced wheat for feeding in almost all areas."

"The Feed Industry Council reports a deficit of two per cent in grains and mill feeds, 15 per cent in high protein feeds, and 3.4 per cent in total concentrates. The figures are based on feeds available and animals to be fed. This means some liquidation of poultry and livestock."

"Maldistribution of feeds is bound to occur as everyone grabs for a few sacks. The present goal of the farmers is 14 per cent fewer chicks in 1946. Commercial broiler areas made heavy reductions in chick purchases in January due to feed shortages and broiler prices."

900,000 Hatched In January
"Ohio hatched 900,000 chicks in January, about the same as in January, 1945. The average figure for January in the years from 1940 through 1944 was 1,627,000. "Turkey growers report intentions to raise five per cent fewer Thanksgiving dinners.

"The egg market bounced off bottom and returned to support prices after a few bad days. Heavy purchases of storage eggs have been reported. This will tend to check liquidation of hens in areas where feed is available."

The bulletin declares further that the demand for poultry is now in excess of the supply, and the feed shortage has reached an acute stage. The OSU bulletin urges poultry raisers to exert every effort to conserve feed.

Feed Saving Urged
Pointing out that much feed can be saved by restricted feeding on good range, the poultry experts recommend better all-summer poultry pasture such as oats, rape, sudan grass, meadows, alfalfa, rye and clover. They also urge the killing and marketing of all low-producing hens and the culling of poor layers.

Similar recommendations have just been made by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, whose latest bulletin adds that proper ventilation in the poultry house invites good egg production and that this can be achieved by opening all of the windows a little instead of one or two windows too much.

Higher Corn Prices Sought As Export Demands Cut Feed Wheat to raise five per cent fewer Thanksgiving dinners.

"The egg market bounced off bottom and returned to support prices after a few bad days. Heavy purchases of storage eggs have been reported. This will tend to check liquidation of hens in areas where feed is available."

The bulletin declares further that the demand for poultry is now in excess of the supply, and the feed shortage has reached an acute stage. The OSU bulletin urges poultry raisers to exert every effort to conserve feed.

Feed Saving Urged
Pointing out that much feed can be saved by restricted feeding on good range, the poultry experts recommend better all-summer poultry pasture such as oats, rape, sudan grass, meadows, alfalfa, rye and clover. They also urge the killing and marketing of all low-producing hens and the culling of poor layers.

Similar recommendations have just been made by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, whose latest bulletin adds that proper ventilation in the poultry house invites good egg production and that this can be achieved by opening all of the windows a little instead of one or two windows too much.
